The diary of Nancy Chan, a married prostitute from New York trying to keep all her balls in the air during the Barcelona AIDS Conference in July 2002

~
Sex worker zealots. Mary Magdalen's relics. A Wall Street Viagra junkie. Anti-trafficking pilgrims. A stolen dildo. A suspicious husband. And one deeply confused call girl.

A 21st century adventure with a medieval twist

Nancy Chan has been asked to do something outrageous – even by her standards. When favourite customer Milt invites her to Villa Gambetta in idyllic Provence, her best friend Allison agrees to share the load – though it means leaving the Barcelona AIDS Conference early.

Nancy needs a break from New York, but what will she tell her husband? Desperate for an alibi, she invents a vacation with her mother in southern France. In reality, Nancy is hard at work with some new playmates: Tini (a Malaysian beauty with something extra), Isabel (a St-Tropez madam), and mysterious Katya. The French countryside is 'ten times trickier than Manhattan' and nothing in this temporary world is quite what it seems.

'Chock-full of bad-girl secrets...tantalizing.' Cosmopolitan
